Dear Allen:

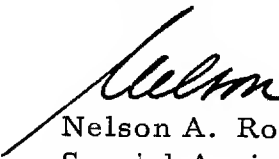

Reference is made to my memorandum of August 12, 1955, subject: "Study of Psychological Aspects of Future U. S. Strategy," in which I advised you that I was assembling a panel to undertake such a study and sought the cooperation and assistance of your people.

The panel has now completed its work and I am happy to furnish you this copy of its report. Distribution will include a number of copies for your Agency, and, if you have use for more, I shall be glad to furnish them on request.

In addition to your personal contribution, a number of your people gave the panel very valuable assistance through briefings on current problems and through participation in panel discussions. We are extremely grateful for this help.

I hope that you will find the views expressed in the report of interest and value. Since the psychological aspects of strategy cannot be separated from the strategy itself, it is only through the efforts of those responsible for our strategy that any positive action can evolve from a study of this nature. I share completely the views of the panel.

Sincerely,

Nelson A. Rockefeller
Special Assistant

The Honorable
Allen W. Dulles
Director
Central Intelligence Agency
